WITH the commencement of hostilities at Foochow on Saturday, the 23rd inst. all doubt as to the completeness of the rupture between France and China must disappear. The bombardment of the Mamoi Arsenal, proof of the final rejection of the French demands by China, and that war, if not formbombardment of the Arsenal was commenced Chinamen. at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, and continued for three hours, with nearly destroyed. Yesterday morning, we Arsenal being shelled for two hours and subsequently taken. Most of the vessels of. the Foochow gunboat squadron are also reported to have been destroyed. The object of the French was to destroy the Arsonal, and destroy or capture the Chinese guaboats in the Min, after which no doubt the French fleet will proceed to some other port. There would be little gained by holding Forebow, as it is too far up the river to be of any use as a port, and it would require a large force to hold it. With the troops at the command of Admiral Courser this could hardly be done, - and it is clear that the French require we imagine, proceed next to Amov, which situated, being near the Keeling collieries and state of mind; and he was discharged. no great distance from Haiphong. Whether attack on Foothow we are as yet unable to accertain; we certainly cannot place faith in the rumour that three of their men-of-war have been disabled, and a later telegram declares the squadron to be intact. The not be so readily displaced necess of the French in destroying the Mamoi Arsenal will, perchance, do something to bring down the stomach of the. mandarins at Poking and make them more ready to come to forms. On this subject there are some remarks in the last report of Mr ALABASTER, British Consulat Hankow, which may be profitably considered. This gentleman says that with our superior appliances for manufacture the monopoly of the hardware ports without taking a clean bill of health. market should pass into our hands; but, he adds, it can only be by careful study of the needs of the people and the offer of articles that they can use that we can gain a footing. It is modification to come into favour; but given to be hoped that a good many such chances will the Chineso models and an understanding of why their form and make have been adopted, we should be able to improve upon thom, both in quality and cheapness, and soon drive them out of favour. No attempt, however, Mr. ALABASTER says, seems to have been made in this direction. As show: ing that a ready market would be found for suitable articles, he says that in what Americans would call "notions." the infinite variety of articles which go to form the stock-intrade of what is known as a foreign store, the market is flooded, and profitably for our manufacturer; though it is a wonder who the palives are that buy the heterogeneous | rapidly through E. and S. to.
